ESSUGGEST Community Guidelines

The ground rules that keep ESSUGGEST a safe, useful space for every ESSU student.

Why These Guidelines Exist

ESSUGGEST only works if students feel safe posting honestly and the university can act on what it sees. These guidelines exist to protect both, not to discourage people from speaking up.

Be Respectful

Disagreement is fine. Personal attacks aren't.

- No harassment, threats or personal attacks toward students, faculty or staff, named or not.
- No hate speech or content targeting someone's identity.
- Critique ideas and policies, not people.

Keep It Constructive

ESSUGGEST is meant to surface ideas the university can actually act on.

- Be specific about the problem and where possible, a proposed fix.
- Stay on-topic within the tag/category you chose.
- Avoid duplicate posts, upvote or comment on an existing suggestion instead of reposting it.

Anonymity Is a Privilege, Not a Shield

Posting anonymously is meant to make it easier to speak honestly about sensitive topics, not to say things you wouldn't otherwise be accountable for. Anonymous posts are held to the exact same standard as named ones, and repeated abuse of anonymity can lead to losing the option to post anonymously.

Content That Isn't Allowed

- Spam, advertising or off-topic promotional content.
- Sharing another student's or staff member's private information without consent.
- Deliberately false claims presented as fact (misinformation).
- Content that is illegal, sexually explicit or promotes self-harm or violence.

What Happens if Guidelines Are Broken

Violations are reviewed case by case. Depending on severity, outcomes can range from a content removal and warning to temporary posting restrictions, to account suspension for repeated or serious violations. See the Reporting Handbook for how to flag content that breaks these guidelines.
